Dedication

John C. Shields

It is with a great sense of pride and satisfaction that the staff of the 1973 Aerie dedicates this yearbook to such a deserving and well loved person. Having been a vital part of our school and our lives for the past two years, he has exemplified the rare qualities of a genuine teacher and friend. His deep personal interest in students, as well as in administration, has proved of immeasurable significance to the student body as a whole, but also individually. As a teacher, his gift is inspiration--showing all how to enjoy life, while giving the best of themselves. As a friend--he is never too busy to answer a need, large or small, and his counsel always insures a brighter outlook to those who seek his help. His insight to learning and compassion for others is a part of what makes him such a special person and guide. He has certainly served as a positive influence and vibrant awareness in our lives.

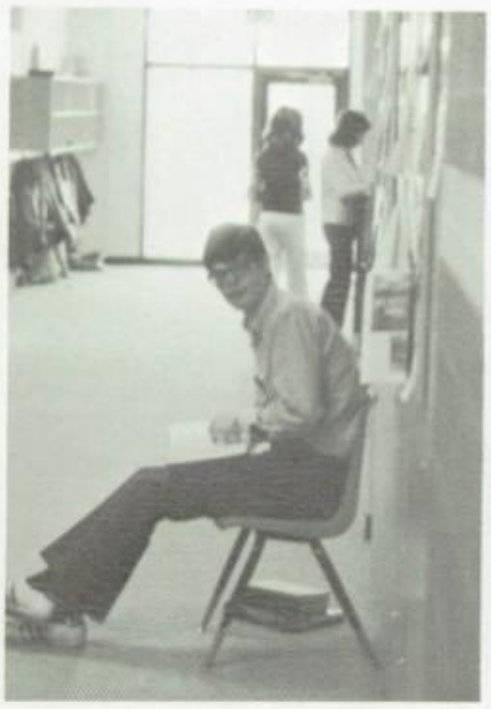
Therefore, on behalf of the students at Brentwood Academy, and in accordance with our intense respect and appreciation, we dedicate this book to such a man. For, Mr. Shields, it is because of your sincere, unselfish care for students above all else, that we want to offer a most indebted "thanks".

The Staff

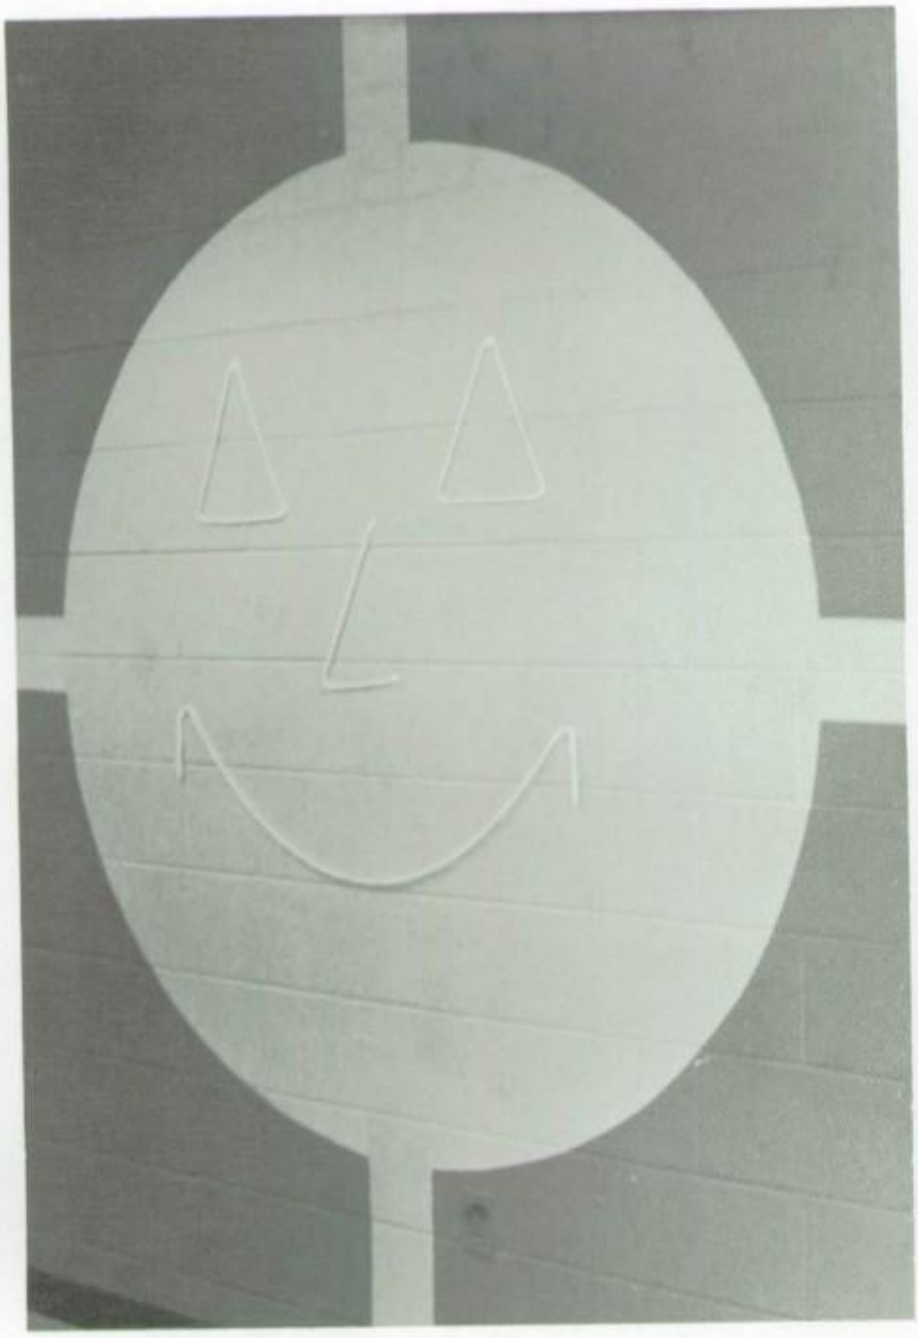
A student look-alike here, Mr. Shields is pictured as sponosr of the H.S.Q. team, one of the many groups he successfully worked with.

A new awakening, the year begins,
A realm of memories and lasting friends . . .

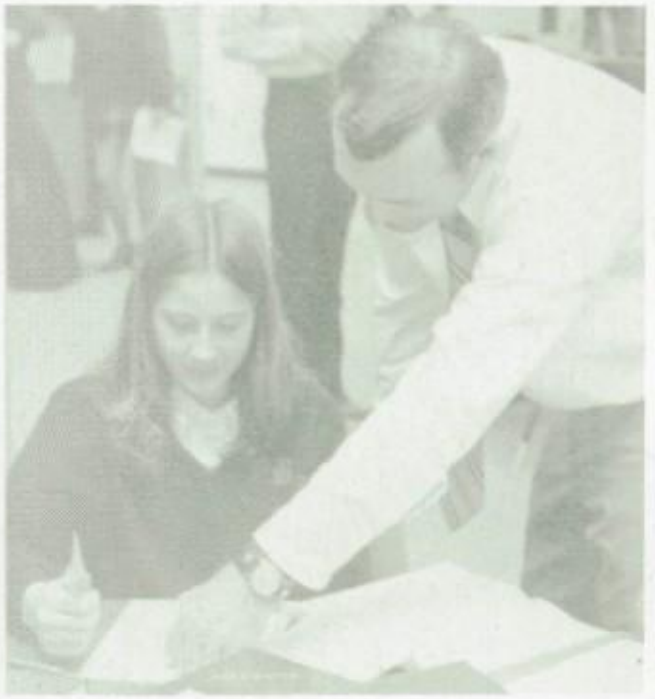
The many plans you've made, the happy days,
The years how fast they fade-the hopes they raise . . .



The teachers always there in time of need,
And from the warming smile-there sprang a seed . . .



A seed which represents the care of those,
Who put their hearts into the school they choose . . .



And now as we look back on this past year,
We feel a sense of pride and shed a tear . . .

To show the happiness within our soul,
To know we've shared a part-become a whole . . .

TALON

Under the capable leadership of the editor, Kim Bauman, and his assistant editor, Jeff Colton, this years newspaper was the biggest and best ever. Using imagination and lots of new ideas each time was a hard job, but the staff fulfilled their job well. Their sponsor was Mrs. Baumgartner, who deserves a large bottle of Excedrin!

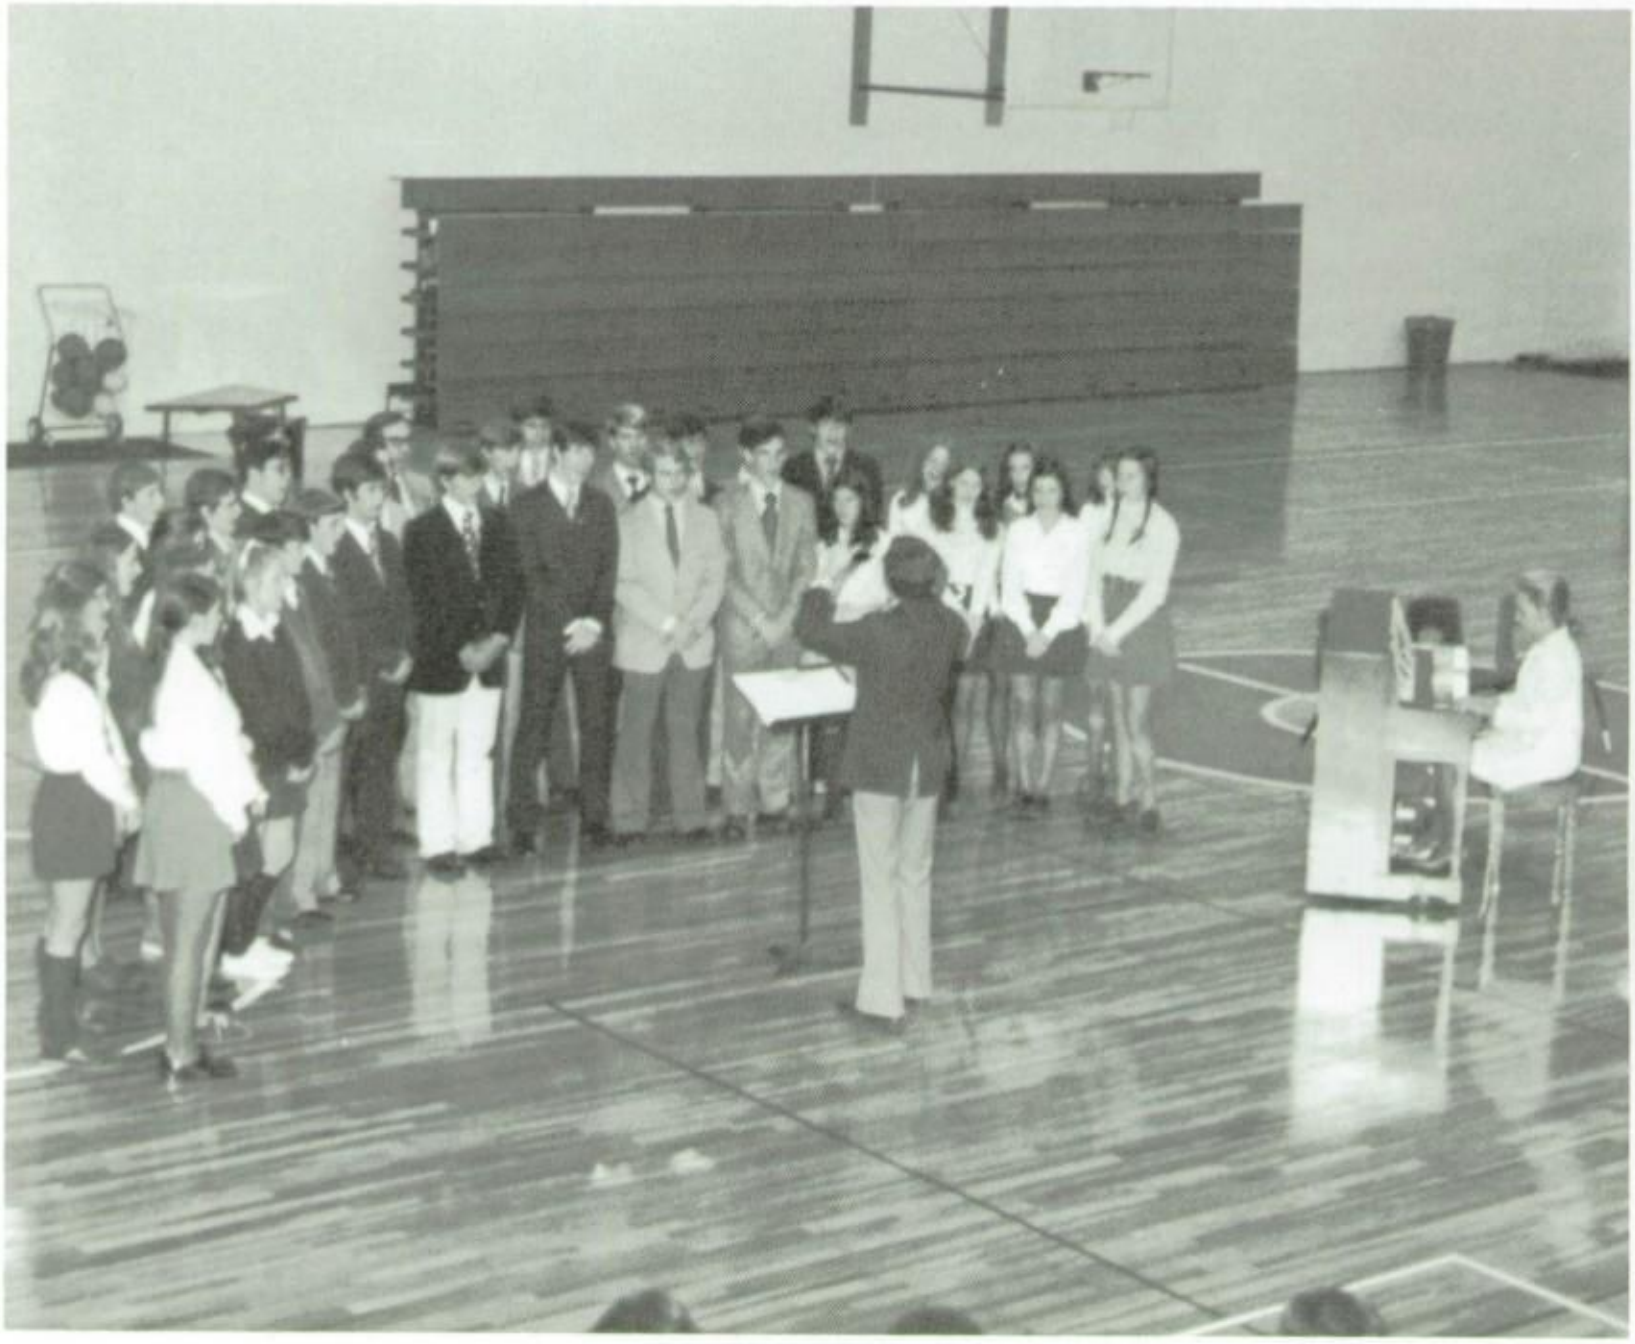
Brentwood's Singers . . . As They Offer Their Own Sounds of Music



The newly formed chorus this year was headed by Mel Black, whose own musical ability served to strengthen the height of the group's achievement. Due to alot of hard work, the chorus has made much progress this year, and is certainly deserving of a little praise and thanks for the contribution it has made to Brentwood's activities.

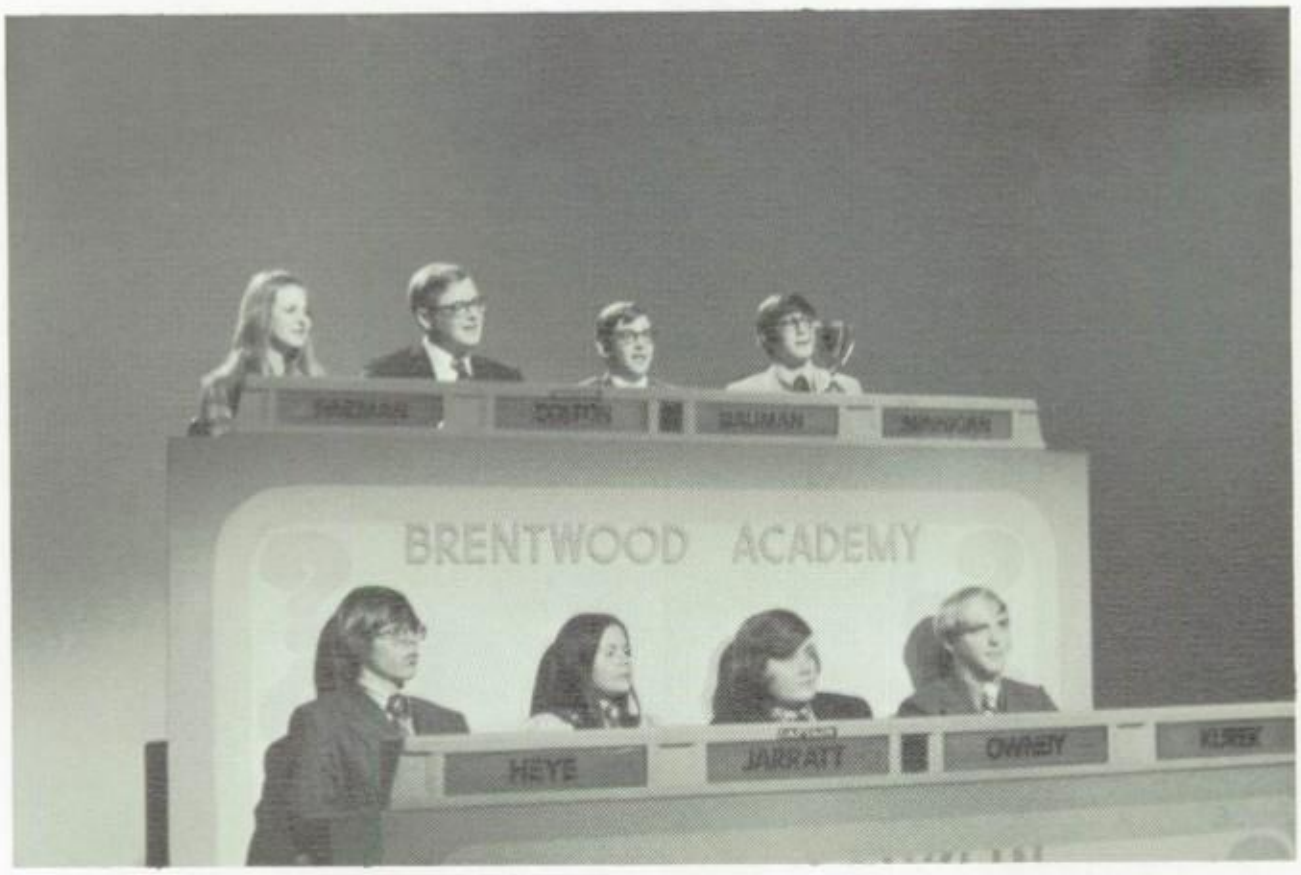
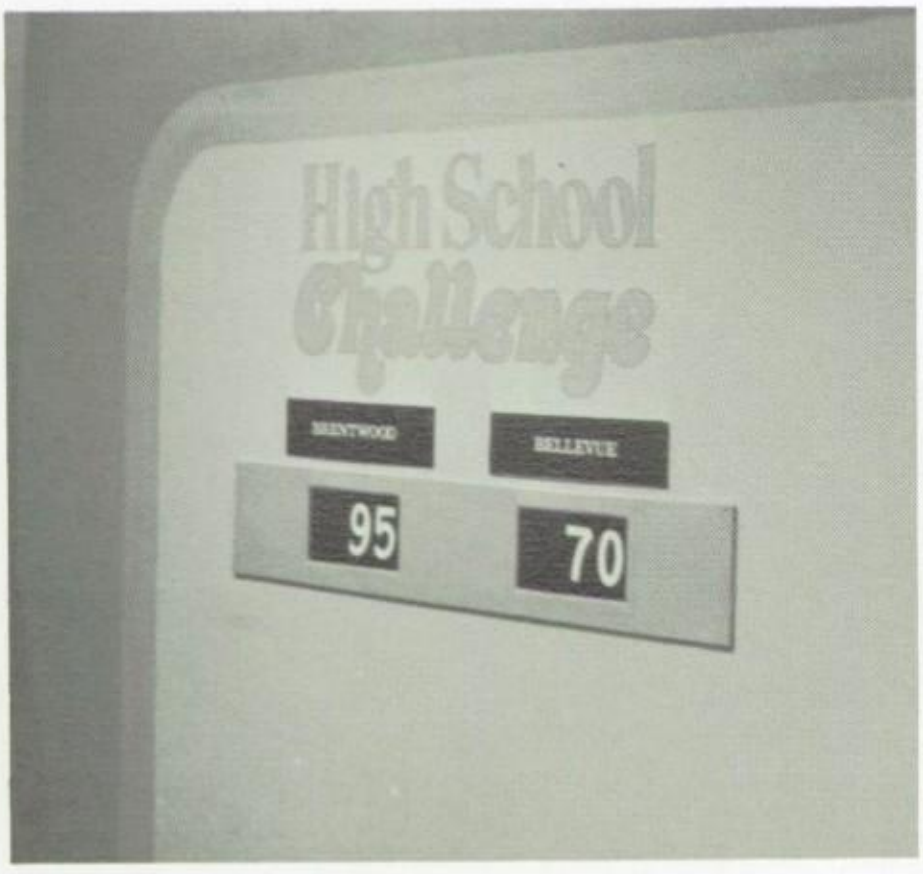
Congratulations are in order to all these students. A special word of praise goes to Terry Mash and Dan Coley. Terry is the first recipient of the Triangle Award, and Dan is the recipient of the Sewanee Award for Outstanding Junior Young Man.

High School Challenge



The High School Challenge team was composed of Cindy Parman, Jeff Colton, Kim Bauman, Hal Minnigan, and Arnold Dillon as alternate. They defeated three teams Bellevue High School, Dupont High School, and Franklin High School. They received a trophy and a place in the playoffs. Even though they were defeated by Hillwood High School in the playoffs, they well represented Brentwood Academy as our first High School Challenge team.



The final score against Bellevue High School.

Mrs. Shields, the faculty sponsor, congratulates the team after its third win over Franklin High School.

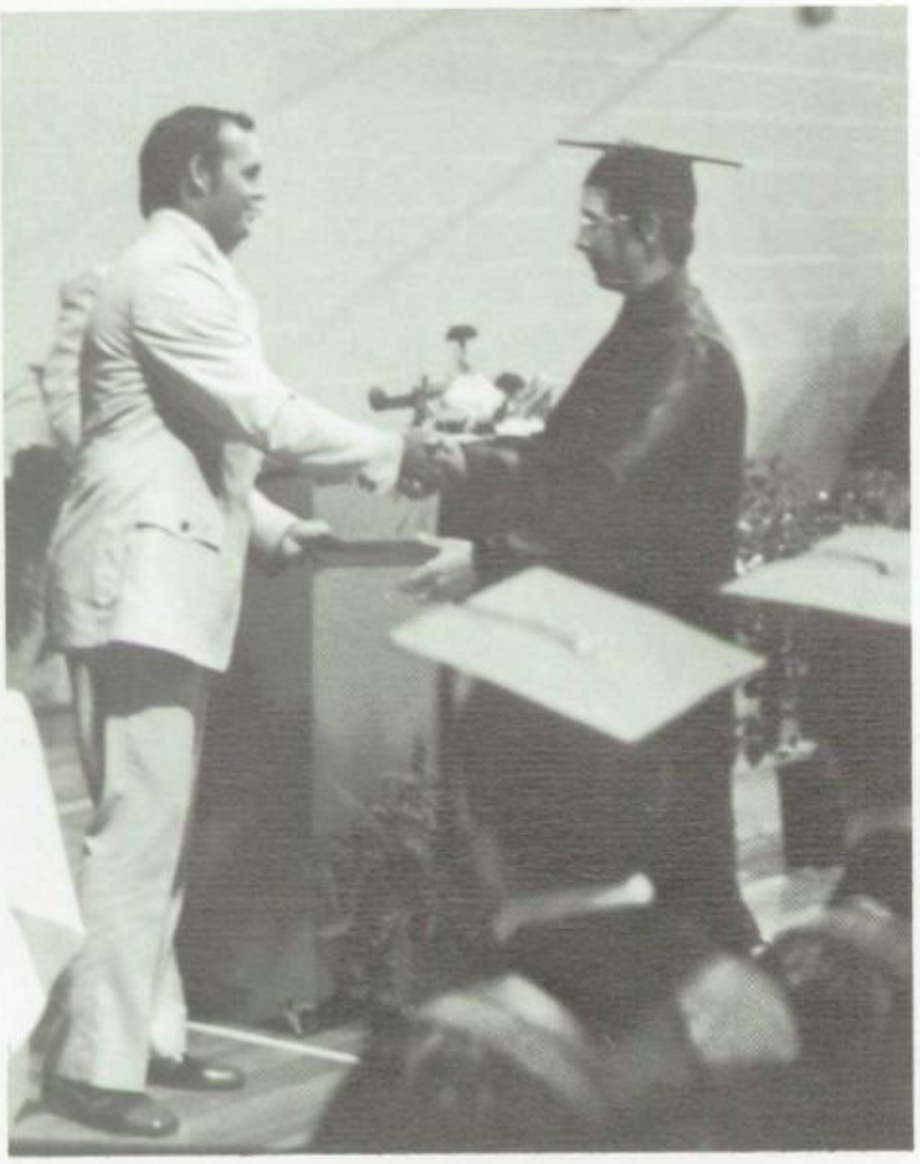
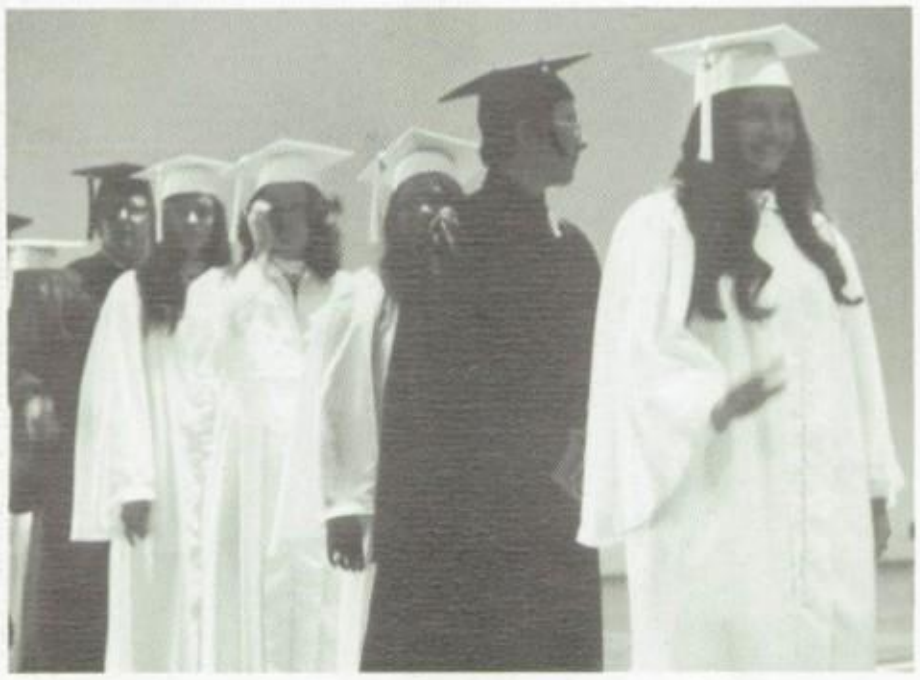
First Graduation



First boy to Graduate; Kim Bauman



LAST WILL AN

I, AME RUTH ARLT leave my naivete' concerning the facts of life to Cathey Cargile.

I, KIM ROBERT BAUMAN leave to Coach Flatt one English grammar book, one Philosophy book, and one pronunciation guide.

I, PATRICIA CAMPBELL BREWER (alias Mae West) leave a year's supply of guaranteed passion fruit (otherwise known as olives), daily excursions to the Little Dipper (Baskin Robbins), and all the pleasant memories to our "tacky" French classes to my favorite teacher and person, Mr. Baker.

I, REBECCA LEE BREWER leave my sudden unexplainable outburst of laughter, my attractive socks, and my constant fatigue to Mrs. Stewart.

I, JERI JACQUELYN CAMPBELL leave my constant desire to make things perfectly clean to Tim Haley.

I, JEFFERY CRAIG COLTON leave to my golf coach, Mr. Russell, one dozen floating golf balls, one snakebite kit for the forest, and one Lawrence of Arabia costume for the sand, seeing that these are the three places on a golf course that he frequents the most. I would have left my caddy, but he is young and values life dearly.

I, TINA JEAN DILLINGHAM leave my unfailing ability to stick my foot in my mouth to Terri Delboy, who will best fulfill my place.

I, HARRY ARNOLD DILLON leave my fondest possession, a Moshe Dyan eye-patch, to my favorite teacher, Mrs. Baumgartner and to Coach Flatt my can of hair straightener, and hope it works better for him than it did me.

I, JOHN PAUL FRICK leave a copy of "How to Save Medical Expenses" written by Oral Roberts to Coach Flatt and the football team.

I, DANIEL GEORGE GREEN leave whatever has been left or forgotten to whoever has been left out.

I, RONALD JAY KLEIN leave one way . . . mine.

I, LISA ANNE LANIER leave my extreme flirtiness to Stacy Spann and Jan Ray.

I, TERRY LYNN MASH leave to Mr. Brown and Coach Flatt, the newly revised edition of the TSSAA rules.

I, LOIS JEAN REEVES leave my set of old retainers to Mr. Baker.

I, NANCY GRAY SIMPKINS leave my ability to "graduate", to talk to a certain good-looking man, and to giggle alot to the Girls Varsity Basketball Team.

I, WILLIAM L. TRAUGHBER leave my sideburns to Rick Baggett.

I, DEBBIE ANN KRAUTH leave my ability to mispronounce words perfectly clear, especially Constantinople to Mrs. Stewart.

I, MAXEY LEE SANDERS leave my doghouse, my dogbone, my supperdish, and a one hundred pound bag of Purina Dog Chow to Mel Black, which fits his style.

Happy days are here again!

"Altogether, now, a one, and a two, and a three ....

A new awakening, the year begins
A realm of memories and lasting friends
The many plans you've made, the happy days
The years, how fast they fade-the hopes they raise
The teachers always there in time of need-
And from the warming smile-there sprang a seed.
A seed which represents the care of those,
Who put their hearts into the school they chose.
And now as we look back on this past year,
We feel a sense of pride and shed a tear,
To show the joy that clings within our soul,
To know we've shared a part-become a whole.
